Treasury Department Rules On Exemptions Under G.I. Bill

WASHINGTON.—Parents of veterans attending school under the G.I. Bill of Rights got a break in a treasury ruling covering their income tax.

The treasury ruled a parent, in figuring income tax, may take an exemption for a son getting more than $500 from Veterans' administration to attend school, provided the parent furnishes more than one-half the son's support.

This amounted to an exception to the general rule that no one can be counted as a dependent if his gross income exceeds $500 a year. G.I. educational payments, such as tuition, do not constitute income for tax purposes, the ruling said. These payments are made directly to the educational institution.

Housing Riddle Up to Industry

Responsibility of Relieving Shortage Is Shifted By Government.

WASHINGTON. — Formal notice has been given by the government that it has shifted chief responsibility for meeting the housing shortage to private industry, with federal controls and aid to be continued only where they "will result in more housing."

The declaration was made in an official policy statement on the 1947 housing program by Frank R. Creedon, housing expediter, and Raymond M. Foley, national housing administrator.

Creedon and Foley citing a series of controls which have been relaxed since resignation of Wilson W. Wyatt, former housing expediter, declared:

"These changes signify that in the moderate priced range of homes for sale, private industry is practically on its own again. Most of the responsibility borne by the government under a war depleted economy during the last year has now, under improved conditions, been returned to the established avenues of private industry."

Forsee Million Homes.

The two officials, who took over direction of the veterans' housing program from Wyatt, quoted building industry spokesmen as saying that construction could begin on one million homes in 1947, and that with the carryover from 1946, "about one million homes and apartments can be completed, including conversions."

The government has removed the $10,000 sales ceilings on new housing; opened up new home construction to non-veterans; substituted a permit system for the old priorities system by which building materials were channeled into veterans' housing, relaxed restrictions governing the sale of building materials to non-priority-holders, and raised the allowable total for non-housing construction from 35 million dollars to 50 million dollars weekly.

Name Housing Council.

Foley announced establishment of a federal housing coordinating council in a move to eliminate duplication of effort and overlapping of functions by eight government agencies concerned with housing.

The council includes representatives of veterans' administration, agriculture department, reconstruction finance corporation, federal deposit insurance corporation, office of housing expediter, federal housing administrator, federal public housing authority and the federal home loan bank system.

Foley said the council would seek to develop a unified approach to common problems in housing. He listed such questions as reconciling varying techniques in residential appraisal, uniform mortgage foreclosure laws and long range improvements in building codes.

OLA LOIS CARTER BRIDE OF ROBERT M. MORRIS

New Hope Baptist Church was lighted by candles and decorated with evergreens as a background for arrangements of white snapdragons and gladioli for the wedding Saturday evening of Miss Ola Lois Carter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thornton R. Carter, of Appomattox, and Robert Miller Morris, son of Lawrence W. Morris and the late Mrs. Morris, of Disputanta. The ceremony at eight o'clock, was performed by the Rev. Omar G. Burnette, of Halifax, a sister-in-law, the Rev. L. Preston Brown.

Mrs. Arthur A. Carter, organist, and A. G. DeJerson, soloist, Lynchburg, provided the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a white satin gown, trimmed in lace, the full skirt terminating in a train. Her finger tip veil of illusion was draped and held in place by pearls. She carried a white prayer book and her flowers were gardenias.

Miss Virginia Carter, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her gown of white moire and net was made with a fitted bodice and high neckline. She carried shower bouquet of pastel flowers an wore matching flowers in her hair.

Miss Margaret Ann Carter, neice of the bride, was flower girl. Her dress was taffeta with full skirt. She carried a shower bouquet of pastel spring flowers.

Miss Rosa Mae Wooldridge, Miss Katie Woodson and Miss Doris Reynolds, of Appomattox, and Mrs. Joe Burrow, of Richmond, were other attendants. They were in white jersey frocks and carried shower bouquets of flowers with matching sprays in their hair.

L. W. Morris, Jr., of Richmond brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Thornton R. Carter, Jr., and Joe H. Burrow, of Richmond; Edell Carter, of Lynchburg, and Henry Morris, of Yale.

For the reception at the home of the bride's parents, an arch of white flowers lent bridal effect.

For their northern wedding trip the bride was in blue-grey gabardine suit with navy blue accessories.

They will make their home in Richmond.

United States Will Lend Finland Another $37,000,000

WASHINGTON.—Uncle Sam is putting up another 37 million dollars to help his hard-praying foreign borrower, Finland, back on its feet.

Finland, treasury officials said, remains the only borrower which never has failed to make the payment on a debt contracted with this country as an aftermath of World War I.

The little Baltic nation will get the new credits from the Export-Import bank, which let it have 40 million dollars in 1945 and 1946 to buy urgently needed materials.

Western States Plan Statues Of Famous Sons for Capitol

WASHINGTON. — The 73 state-contributed statues in the U. S. capitol may have to move over to make room for newcomers.

Six western states, three of which have never before been represented in Statuary Hall, have given notice that they will present statues of famous sons.

This means they are accepting congress' 82-year-old invitation to each state to commemorate not more than two of its illustrious citizens in statues for the halls of congress.

Idaho is getting ready to crate its second statue, a bronze figure of the late Sen. William E. Borah.

Oregon has voted to present statues of Dr. John McLoughlin and the Rev. Jason Lee, pioneers. Colorado will send a statue of pioneer John Evans. Montana will be represented, for the first time, by a figure of Charles Marion Russell, cowboy artist.

Utah, also a newcomer to Statuary Hall, has authorized a statue of the Mormon leader, Brigham Young; and South Dakota is deliberating its second statue choice.

Ranchers Use New Type Pen For Branding and Tattooing

CHICAGO.—The ball-pen is replacing the branding iron and tattoo needle on many farms and ranches throughout the country. "Branding" of registered cattle and "tattooing" of rabbits, sheep and other small stock is being speeded up and simplified through use of the unique writing instrument, letters received here by Eversharp reveal. Farmers, ranchers, stock breeders and poultrymen are finding that ballpens lighten one of the most time-consuming and onerous of farm chores, the letters indicate.

In the case of cattle and smaller stock the branding is usually done in the ear, where the owner writes the animal's register number or other identifying symbols. A small wooden clamp then is applied briefly to press the permanent ink firmly into the flesh where the mark reportedly remains for the animal's lifetime.

Chickens are marked either on the upper leg or under the wings, as are turkeys, ducks and pigeons. One beekeeper reported that the pen had saved him countless hours in pulling proper-identity marks on queen bees. The smooth ball, he declared, prevents injury to the insects and the quick-drying ink does not smear or blur, in contrast to the brush and paint method he formerly employed.

In other fields the ball-pen is being used to outline areas for X-ray treatment, to mark prescription symbols on optical glass, to indicate lines along which lapidaries cut gems, for outlining patterns on wood, glass, leather, plastics and cloth and for some 50 other novel purposes for which the conventional pen is unsuited, letters received indicate.

Birth Data Change Proposed By the British Government

LONDON.—The government published a proposed law to authorize a simplified birth certificate containing no reference to the child's parentage.

This would remove any stigma of illegitimacy from children born out of wedlock. Complete vital statistics still would be maintained at the record office, however, and would be available to the public for a fee on specific request.
